

Hossein Mahmoudian is an Associate Professor of Demography at the University of Tehran. He is now the head of the Department of Demography of the University of Tehran. Hossein has a PhD in Demography from the Australian National University where he conducted his research on the fertility of Muslims in Australia. He has published many papers on fertility, migration and demography of women. He has been the vice president of the population Association of Iran during 2008-2014. He has also been the National Program Director of the UNFPA project on Population and Development since 2006.

Nomination for APA Council 2016-2018