

International Visiting Scholar Program at Asian Demographic Research Institute

We are excited to announce that the Asian Demographic Research Institute (ADRI) (<https://adri.shu.edu.cn/>) at Shanghai University is inviting international scholars to join us for a three-month visiting scholar research collaboration program. This program aims to provide scholars with an opportunity to collaborate with our researchers at ADRI, exchange knowledge and ideas, and conduct research collaboration in an international setting.

As the headquarters of Asian MetaCentre for Population and Sustainable Development Analysis, ADRI is committed to promoting research excellence and advancing population studies in Asia. We believe that this program will enhance collaboration between MetaCentre member institutes and individual scholars. It will also bring fruitful research outcome and contribute to the overall development of demographic research in the region.

Scholars from all disciplines related to demographic research are welcome to apply, including but not limited to sociology, economics, statistics, environmental sciences, public health, geography and social policy. Priority will be given to associate or full professors based in Asian countries or carry out studies on Asia-related demographic topics.

ADRI will provide financial assistance to cover the international travel and living expenses of visiting scholars during their stay. Scholars will have access to ADRI's research facilities and will be able to work with our experienced researchers on their projects.

To apply, please submit your curriculum vitae and cover letter to minyue\_maxine@shu.edu.cn. The application deadline is June 30, 2023.

We look forward to receiving your application and welcoming you to ADRI.

Best regards,

Asian Demographic Research Institute
